

Key Take-Aways from the 2022 iC<sup>3</sup> Life Science Summit

Form Bio attended BioNTX's iC<sup>3</sup> Life Science Summit and gathered a lot of insight from the sessions. Here is what they learned:

- Texas biotech is finally starting to catch fire
- Bio-manufacturing is an area ripe for investment and job opportunities in Texas
- Good science is the foundation but entrepreneurs and clinical development teams can make a company
- North Texas' central location is an advantage for cold supply chain
- Texas has seen a 33% increase in biotech jobs over the last 10 years

Texas Collaborates to Meet the Needs of New Government Agency - ARPA-H

Texas has the right environment to help ARPA-H achieve its promise of eliminating existing deficiencies in our national biomedical ecosystem, promoting the integration of multiple disciplines and institutions, and fully addressing persistent inequities in America's health system.

Because of Texas's top research institutions, immense talent pool, and centralized location, our state has a long history of supporting health advancement projects originating from all over the country and delivering health care to meet the needs of a wide range of communities. That is why Texas is uniquely positioned to help ARPA-H achieve its mission of addressing health inequities nationwide, and worldwide.
